Tropicana Introduces iPad Wine List at FIN and Il Verdi

Tropicana is first in Atlantic City to uncork this exciting new technology trend for wine lovers

ATLANTIC CITY, NJ (December 1, 2011) –Tropicana is raising a toast to technology with the introduction of iPad wine lists at two of the resort’s fine dining restaurants: FIN and Il Verdi. Now, instead of printed wine lists, dinner guests will enjoy an engaging digital version that allows them to explore an impressive list of varietals.

“Times have changed in the food and beverage industry and Tropicana is changing right along with them,” said Tony Rodio, president and chief executive officer. “People love to play with electronics. Everything is more fun on an iPad – including selecting the perfect wine with your dinner.”

The iPads take the guesswork out of ordering wine for novices and aficionados alike. Those who know what they like can select from among dry, sparkling wines, white wines, red wines, rose wines, or dessert wines. The iPad allows dinner guests to browse photos, profiles, regions, maps, and pricing, which ranges from $40 to $700 per bottle.

For patrons looking for more guidance, the iPad wine lists feature the evening’s dinner menu selections. By selecting their appetizer, soup, salad, entrée and dessert, users will receive pairing recommendations. Simply click on the wine that interests you to see a photo of the bottle, a brief description and selling price.

The majority of wines offered at FIN and Il Verdi can be found on the affordable list, and both dining establishments feature many New Jersey wines. Unique options include the exceptional blends of Opus One and Dominus Estate. Tropicana also offers an exceptional pinot noir from Flowers Vineyards and Winery, a Sonoma Coast favorite.

The iPad wine lists only showcase wines that are available at the moment. If a bottle sells out, it comes off the list. So you will never be disappointed again. The iPads even feature biographies for the restaurants’ chefs and will soon offer catering menus and highlight specialty drinks available at the bar.

To make dinner reservations at FIN or Il Verdi and try the new iPad wine lists for yourself, call 1-800-345-8767.
